Gary Todd

Drummer and comic, has been involved in show business since age 2 when he started performing as an acrobat with his family act "The Tumbling Todds". As well as singing and performing on over fifteen musical instruments, GARY TODD is absolutely hilarious, outlandish, and totally unpredictable.

Michael Jay

Began singing and playing guitar at age 12. By the time he was 21 he was playing bass, composing music for his own bands and performing along side national recording artists. Michael has done television and radio commercials, was musical director of a local play, is involved in music ministry at his church, and as a personal highlight, sang the National Anthem for the Chicago Cubs. As well as playing ten instruments, MICHAEL JAY is the vocal strong point of the band.

Gary Polkow

Began his piano training at age 7. By age 8 he was rewriting and performing traditional classical children's pieces. His list of credits includes film credits, synthesizer sound design, music and choir director, as well as the musical director of New Odyssey.
